

27th May 2026

Dear Professor Fras,
Dear Professor Fidler Mis,

We warmly welcome the adoption and publication of the SNG 2025, an important step for public health, sustainable food systems and evidence-based nutrition policy in Slovenia.

SNG 2025 reflect several years of interdisciplinary scientific work, international expert review and cross- sectoral collaboration. We particularly welcome the integration of health and environmental sustainability considerations within a single framework, aligned with the evolving direction of contemporary international nutrition guidelines.

We also highly appreciate the strong scientific methodology underpinning the process, including international peer review and the preparation of the first version of the Guidelines in English, which enables international scientific evaluation and comparability with contemporary international standards.

The adoption of SNG 2025 represents an important strategic step towards a healthier, more sustainable and resilient future. We wish Slovenia every success in implementing SNG 2025 across the public health, education and food systems.

We congratulate all ministries, institutions, experts and stakeholders involved in this important achievement.

Sincerely,

Roberta Alessandrini, PhD

Director of the Dietary Guidelines Initiative
Physicians Association for Nutrition (PAN International)